

The Spirit to Endure

YMCA of Greater New York • 2009 Annual Report

The first day at a new school. All alone in a foreign land. Debilitating physical pain.

All roadblocks to be confronted. All challenges to be overcome.

In life, each of us encounters seemingly insurmountable obstacles to fulfilling the potential that lies within. But with help we can go over, around or through. We can excel. We can endure. For over a century and a half, the YMCA has been the understanding counselor, the encouraging teacher, the supportive friend.

In 1983, 11-year-old Josh Heitler discovered he was capable of surviving away from his parents at New York YMCA Camp. Then over four summers as a counselor, he guided scores of city kids to find the same independence inside themselves. As the architect of the Camp's new Evergreen Lodge, Josh has crafted a landmark setting for the Y to play that critical supporting role in the lives of the coming generations of kids and teens, encouraging them to grow, thrive and endure.

“The Y camp experience is a big part of how I developed my independent self.”

– Josh Heitler

{ Last summer, nearly 2,000 kids from the city went on a personal journey towards self-reliance, following in the footsteps of Sumner Dudley and his group of Brooklyn Y kids whose 1885 trip in the wilderness marked the invention of summer camp.

The Confidence to Endure

Sixth-grader Zhi Wei Cheng sat by himself during lunch on his first day of school at MS131 in Chinatown. He was alone and isolated, afraid he would never summon the courage to ask a crowded table of strangers if he could sit with them, until he went to the Y's Beacon Center that afternoon.

"I went to the Y because I knew they could help me with my homework. But as the days went by, I grew more confidence in talking to others."

And his grades improved, too. Nearing the end of the school year with an A average, Zhi recognizes the Y's staff set him on the right path.

"They really showed me how to be a good person when I grow up."

"Making friends at the Y was easy,
because all I said was hi."

– Zhi Wei Cheng

Academic instruction has been a core part of the Y's youth development work since 1852, and today, more than 13,000 kids spend the critical after school hours under the Y's guidance.

The Skills to Endure

When a career as a laboratory technician and three part time jobs weren't enough to support her five children, Miguelina Ortega left them behind in the Dominican Republic to earn a better living in America. After making ends meet as a home health care worker, she finally found a job in a hospital's lab. But the language barrier proved too much for her supervisor to handle, and she was let go.

"Then I went to the YMCA. I felt scared because English for me is difficult to learn, but step by step I learned."

The Y's New Americans Welcome Center in the Bronx also helped her prepare for a successful citizenship test. Now reunited with her kids, Miguelina feels at home in her adopted country and is looking to get back into the lab.

"It's different now because I know English. Now I'm relaxed."

"Getting citizenship was easy, because I learned to read and write English at the YMCA."

– Miguelina Ortega

{ Social responsibility is a core driver of Y programming, and the YMCA has supported immigrants in building a life in their new home since launching English language instruction on Ellis Island in 1910.

The Strength to Endure

With osteoarthritis leaving her knees bone on bone without cartilage, just walking is a challenge for Ilene Granderson. After the pressure from family to exercise, she made her way to the Bedford-Stuyvesant YMCA and discovered she could do in the water what she couldn't on land.

"If I hadn't joined the Y, I'd probably be in a wheelchair. I couldn't just stay at home and watch the world go by. You need a reason to get up and out and live life."

And Ilene finds encouragement from her friends on the Splashers, a swim team for seniors where everyone is welcome, regardless of ability.

"I know the Y is there for me. It may take me a little longer to get there, but I'm going."

"These knees are ready to give out, but I'm not."

– Ilene Granderson

Swimming pools are precious resources in support of the Y's commitment to supporting healthy living in spirit, mind and body, dating back to the 1885 opening of the first in the US in Brooklyn. }

An Enduring Commitment

From its inception in 1852, New York City's YMCA has thrived, thanks to the passion of its volunteers. Their dedication is a testament to the Y's impact on the lives of the individuals it serves.

Including Raul Sanchez, who has led a resurgence in the Youth & Government teen leadership program, and Consuelo Mack, who has helped to build one of the city's top human services boards, each of our 44 Volunteers of the Year for 2009 has made an invaluable contribution of time and talent to help their YMCA grow stronger in service to the kids and families of New York City.

An Enduring Mission

Dear Friends,

With the encouragement they find in the YMCA, individuals are able to overcome some of the most daunting challenges they will ever face. In the economic climate of 2009, more New Yorkers than ever sought out the support offered by their local YMCA.

In keeping our promise not to turn anyone away for the inability to pay, we responded to increased need, giving away more than $46.6 million in free and subsidized programs and services. We were able to do so because our friends kept their commitment to support us, with more than $42.4 million in contributions from individuals, corporations, foundations and government.

While over the decades our YMCA has evolved to meet the changing and expanding needs facing our communities, we remain true to a clear mission: to help individuals reach their fullest potential in spirit, mind and body.

Thank you for supporting us in this critical work. Thank you for helping our YMCA endure.

Yours in service,

Janice Reals Ellig
Chair 2007-09

Jack Lund
President & CEO

Kevin Burke
Chair 2009-11

On April 21, 1852, community leaders such as Cephas Brainerd, William E. Dodge, Jr. and Robert Ross McBurney met in Chelsea to form the second YMCA in the US, and Y leaders have been driven by a singular mission ever since.

Donor Lists and Financials

Next Century Capital Campaign

Over the next decade, the YMCA of Greater New York is committed to an aggressive revitalization and renewal plan to increase exponentially the YMCA programs and services available to New York City kids, families and communities by:

- Expanding our capacity to reach underserved communities
- Revitalizing and/or replacing YMCAs that have served us well, but are not capable of meeting the challenges that communities are facing in the 21st century and beyond.

Generous donors, including those listed, have made significant and meaningful contributions to help expand the YMCA's capacity to serve through the Next Century capital program.

For additional information about the YMCA of Greater New York's community-building program, please contact Gary Laermer, Chief Development Officer, at glaermer@ymcany.org.

Heritage Society

The Heritage Society recognizes those visionary philanthropists who support the YMCA of Greater New York through a planned or immediate endowment gift. We are truly honored to recognize those who have chosen to support the fulfillment of the YMCA mission in perpetuity with a gift to one of our endowment funds.
